The suppose work did not meet our request to make a Mold or Black Mold testing. They when ahead for an asbestos test that the Insurance knows the outcome as was tested before we acquired the home. and then brushed it up stating tht they don't know when a reputable roofer company was present and witnessed the request.

House was in total disarray and did not know exactly how to get each particular element fixed. Started going through individual contractors to address each different element. Had to get a drywall person, plumber, painter, etc... Was referred to Jenkins and it is an all in one stop and makes life beyond easy. If you want piece of mind and a good job done, go with Jenkins.

Jenkins Restoration was a fantastic partner during our repairs from the 2021 winter storm in Texas, ensuring that our needs were met and walking us through the process at each step. No question was left unanswered and the Project Manager was incredibly accessible and collaborative. I highly recommend this company and have referred others to them based on my experience.

Jenkins didn't follow any schedule that they promised from the first appointment to the clean-up (which they haven't yet done).. They came without tools and had to leave to buy them at Home Depot. Avoid this company.

The property that Jenkins Restorations was involved with is an out of state property (for me), therefore I could not be onsite to coordinate anything related to the job, especially due to Covid 19. As the Project Coordinator, Drew Saltus handled everything, easing an already stressful situation into a more calming experience. His professionalism and coordinated efforts to work with our Concierge desk of the building went above and beyond what was expected. I would recommend Jenkins Restorations to anyone needing this type of service.
