Overall satisfaction is good for the materials and work except for possible new employee miscutting the tile and is required to come back and correct.

Enloe Aluminum lives up to its reputation because they have been known to do good work for more than the 4 years that I have known them. That was one of the decisions to get the work done because they would be the ones that did the work. I am very glad they did!

The salesman came off as a gratuitous salesman, not interested in us as people in the least, and not what we were looking for. The staged phone call to his boss to see if he could knock anymore $ off, and his last request asking for any kind of a deal since it was the end of the year made it clear. The pressure was exactly what happened to us when we were in the process of buying a used car. After he left, he then called my wife asking to come back over even later that night, to get the deal signed. It became more clear, he was just interested in closing a deal asap, before we would change our minds. It worked. We found out afterward we payed way over double what other companies quote. We learned an expensive lesson, do your homework before you hire. And, don't automatically believe a company is reputable, even if they are selling out of Sam's Club.

The crew who came out was pleasant and easy to work with. My only complaint is after they started they said they would be back on a Tuesday and I didn't hear from them until 3 days after that Tuesday when I called them, but overall I'm pleased with their work.
